

Spectrum, Gaming Morning Report Form Strategic Alliance

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Jan. 17 /PRNewswire/ -- Spectrum Gaming Group and Fantini's Gaming Morning Report have formed a strategic alliance designed to improve services for Fantini's growing clientele. Spectrum will perform a broad range of consulting work for the Gaming Morning Report, a daily e-mail service that is considered essential reading for Wall Street and the commercial casino industry and is highly regarded by numerous industry executives and securities analysts.

Spectrum (<http://www.spectrumgaming.com>) is a full-service international gaming consultancy with a global reputation for integrity and experience. Spectrum is based in New Jersey, with offices in the Atlantic City and Princeton areas, as well as in major locations throughout Asia. Its various lines of service range from economic and feasibility studies to regulatory services, with a client base from Singapore to Harrisburg, and from Wall Street to Macau.

Spectrum publishes Michael Pollock's Gaming Industry Observer (<http://www.gamingobserver.com>), a newsletter that tracks trends in the gaming industry. The Observer has won four national awards for editorial excellence. Spectrum produces gaming conferences, from the East Coast Gaming Congress to the Pennsylvania Gaming Congress to the Florida Gaming Summit. Spectrum is also a supporter of the Global Gaming Expo and the new G2E institute.

Fantini's Gaming Morning Report, published by Morning Report Research, provides daily investment-oriented news and analysis to hedge funds, sell-side analysts and gaming industry executives throughout North America and Internationally. In addition, Morning Report Research publishes other investment-oriented products on a consulting basis.

"Frank Fantini has a highly prized reputation, and we are pleased to expand our relationship with him to leverage our mutual strengths," said Spectrum Managing Director Michael Pollock.

"We are excited about our alliance with Spectrum Gaming," said Fantini, president of Morning Report Research. "It will open an array of consulting services to our clients while allowing the Morning Report staff to focus on the investment-oriented research and consulting. We are especially pleased to ally with an organization of Spectrum's quality and universal respect."

Gaming Morning Report clients who want more information can call Frank Fantini at 1-866-683-4357. For more information on Spectrum Gaming Group or Gaming Industry Observer, call 609-272-8330.

SOURCE Spectrum Gaming Group

01/17/2006 08:00 ET

